Meet Da Boss

Screening Consciousness and the Exopolitical Map to Hyperspace

The alien phenomena is full of contradictory and prankster like metaphors yet out of this complex field we can sometimes find a few signs on the map to point us out of the current planetary quagmire and into a more conscious way of being. Tim Leary's acronym of S.M.I².L.E. - Space Migration, Intelligence Increase and Life Extension is one such meme the exopolitical field can use as it widens its scope in the 21st century.

'The Keepers' could well be one of the most important books written and by accident or design it fits in with this approach. Like many accounts of people who have experienced profound contact with 'Otherness' Jim Sparks' story is one of hardship, confusion over an extended period of time and an eventual clarity as to what it all could mean... not only to Jim himself but to a human species destined to leave the gravity well of the planet.

In the first part of this chat with Jim, Exopolitics UK discuss his experiences with a range of simulation-shifting extra-terrestrials, how the human-alien interface may be functioning, possibilities for disclosure and black/covert structure amnesty, win-win models for integrating new technology into the public domain and why making the Amazonian rainforest a priority works on multiple exopolitical and environmental levels.

Why the Jim Sparks case is different:

- Jim has nearly 100% recall of incidents where he interfaced with entities.
- Although hypnotic regression in these cases is a valid tool - it has not been used in this case at all.
- Jim had zero prior interest in UFOs or the alien/UFology community and continues to maintain distance to avoid, as far as possible, 'cultural bleedover'.
- As interaction and autonomy were developed along with a taught language system for evolutionary bootstrapping, we can perhaps conclude that Jim isn't a pawn in the classic sense for the frequently cited alien or human-alien agenda.
- The situation is still developing, transforming and offering a method of dealing with current problematic situations from an exopolitical point of view.

Session 2: You will need some background before this interview as it goes into some depth on what happened to this abductee as Jim was "trained" [initially under punishment/reward scenarios] to learn a whole new language system. This was not simply a new alphabet - it ultimately led to a system where "meaning becomes beheld" - in the words of Terence McKenna: essentially this is the human species' shift into a hyper-dimensional telepathic system. As part of this the human mind/body becomes a resonant transmitter/receiver for 'carrier wave' or synaesthetic information... or at least this is one theory. A more detailed article of what may well be going on is available here: Language and Evolutionary Intervention.

For as long as the UFOlogy field has been around some cynics have made the claim that 'experiencers' are setting out to exploit people by selling their stories for financial return. Jim's case answers this absurd idea because as the successful founder of a US business in real estate, Jim was already financially set up and yet he left it ultimately all behind to concentrate on telling his experiences to people worldwide.

He is currently writing book two.

We sub-titled this section 'screening consciousness' - if you've read the book by Sparks you'll know the ending where Jim is taken to a fairground. This statement matches exactly what went on when Jim was surrounded by the 'true' or 'higher' ETs:

I wish to report an odd hallucination.

I have had this recurrent hallucination that people who I once knew quite well have been replaced by beings which appear to be normal at most times. However, under situations of extreme stress (to the aliens) they seem to momentarily experience some sort of failure in what seems to be some sort of holographic disguise.

My hypothesis is that these beings have some technique, possibly a biologic or cybernetic-organic adaptation, which allows them to project a "seeming" of human appearance. They tend to repeat shared episodes of the past, but offer interpretations of these experiences within singularly inappropriate contexts, as if they were somehow interpreting stored memories via some processing system which is based upon non-human perceptual paradigms.

The hallucinations I have experienced are as follows:

These persons take me for rides, and then I experience a stinging sensation on the neck and scalp, and as this progresses, I start feeling as if I were under the influence of some psychotropic. As the hallucinatory episode progresses, I get the feeling that the person sitting next to me is not human, and when I look out of the corner of my eye, it seems that I am looking at something that is not human. The size and shape are roughly human, but the head is a complex oval, the eyes are very large and compound, and I seem to see mandibles instead of a normal mouth. When I look directly at the person, they always ask immediately "what's wrong," and clash their mandibles fearsomely. I pretend to not notice and bail out of the vehicle at the first opportunity. When I look directly at them, I seem to see the face of an old friend or a loved one, repeating old stories which could have been recorded or memorized, but never do these individuals offer up new interpretations of old experiences which have not been exhaustively discussed. I never tell them anything new, unless it's quite contrived, and they often accept the most preposterous tales as if I were relating commonplaces.

Has anyone else had similar experiences? I refer to the sudden impression that one is talking to a human-sized insectiform alien.

Cosmic Trigger Radio covers issues in the exopolitical field.

We make memetic transmissions each Sunday and shows are available as podcasts in site archives.

"My stereo-typed but already debunked notion of a 'UFO' appears in the sky above La Chorrera. By appearing in a form that casts doubt on itself it achieves a more perfect cognitive dissonance than if its seeming alien-ness were completely convincing..." - Terence McKenna in the Amazon, 1970s.
