"Cease and desist your operations... We're terminating your project due to the threats it poses to the international monetary system."

The best interview yet validating the fact that since the second world war we do indeed have free energy in multiple formats.

Especially the lines from General Motors telling them that if they launched an antigravity vehicle "we'll shoot them down". Blatent evidence of what [[Eisenhower]] called the encroaching [[military industrial complex]] - primarily founded by the British and US after WWII when Nazi scientists were brought over and placed in multiple positions via [[Operation Paperclip]].
